Message from AMCP Foundation President

Looking back a year — as the end of a long 2017 trek looms large — I recall writing that 2016 was “challenging.” Hah! Might y’all agree that it could be an understatement to call 2017 “tumultuous?!” And yet, for your AMCP Foundation, 2017 turned out to be an outstanding year of growth, improved financial stability and sharpened strategic focus. Research Symposium Summary Report, Webinar Tackle Perceptions of 'Value'

The perception of what is “valuable” in any particular intervention can vary widely between providers, patients and payers, according to panelists at the 7th Annual Research Symposium. More than 170 health care thought leaders from across the country gathered Oct. 16 for the half-day event on “Value-Based Health Care: Identifying Benefits for Patients, Providers and Payers.” On a recap webinar Nov. 30, participants further discussed patient’s evolving role in health care. Foundation Supports Texas Communities, Hosts Toy Drive

The Foundation has been busy with community outreach efforts. With the help of AMCP members and VolunteerNow, we delivered socks and bags to victims of Hurricane Harvey, as well as needy families in the Dallas area. Special thanks go to two very motivated members who organized sock drives and personally delivered more than 200 pairs: Erin Solano of Huron Consulting Group and Tim Sawyers of MedImpact. AMCP and Foundation staff also donated 74 toys and books to needy families in Alexandria Va. Read more.
