AMCP TO FDA: LET DRUGMAKERS SHARE MORE INFO — The Academy of Managed Care Pharmacy is urging FDA to make good on a 1997 law that was supposed to allow drug companies to share certain economic information with payors. Pharma has been reluctant to use the law in the absence of formal direction from FDA. The agency is supposed to supply guidance later this year and AMCP is weighing in with consensus recommendations from drug and managed care companies, academics, doctors and patient advocates whom the trade group convened last week. They will be published in July but a preview is here: <http://prn.to/1TUQeg7>
